American Board for Transplant Certification announces Examination Fee Reduction for the Clinical Transplant Nurse Certification

December 6, 2010 – Olathe, KS – Continuing in its pursuit of excellence and examination program accreditation the Board of Governors for the American Board for Transplant Certification (ABTC) recently elected to reduce the examination fee for the Clinical Transplant Nurse Certification. Effective January 1, 2011 the fee to sit for the examination will be reduced to $325.00.

If a transplant program succeeds in certifying at least 5 candidates for any of the ABTC examinations between January 1 and December 31, 2011 the program may receive its first year of approved provider status free for the 2012 calendar year. With an unlimited amount of CE credit that can be offered to staff, you can minimize staff travel expenses – a $1,500 savings!

Additional information regarding this examination and all the certification examinations offered by ABTC can be found on the website at www.abtc.net

The American Board for Transplant Certification is a non profit, non governmental voluntary certification agency for transplant professionals. ABTC's examinations are developed based on practice analyses for job related examination content and are administered in over 170 assessment centers within the United States and an extended international web-based network that offers testing in 18 countries at 33 locations.
